

-
1. The English learner spoken corpus provides over 140 sets of high-quality recordings, including _____
 - A reading of sentences
 - B passages
 - C individual interviews
 - D all of the above

 2. This learner corpus identifies segmental and suprasegmental difficulties in learning English pronunciation by learners from _____
 - A Hong Kong
 - B different dialectal regions of Mainland China
 - C South Asia
 - D all of the above

 3. What can you do if you want to search for specific pronunciation errors?
 - A Jump to 'browse' page and input the categories of the error step by step.
 - B Browse the data pages of each speaker to search.
 - C Jump to 'search' page and input the categories of the error step by step.
 - D all of the above

 4. Students can use the corpus to perform phonological analysis by noticing the common errors that they share with the learner speech data and discovering the patterns.

True
False

 5. This learner corpus only identifies segmental difficulties in learning English pronunciation.

True
False

 6. Which sound is used to replace the sound /ɑ:/ by learners in the corpus?
 - A /ɑ/
 - B /ə/
 - C /ʌ/
 - D /æ/